The elder Lee, I father of Nellie, is a noble character; and easy, pliant people who get themselves into many troubles by an inability to say no may learn a highly useful lesson upon the subject from an interview between the elder Lee and the Rev. Mr. Stryker. There are persous who may feel inclined to think the Rev. Mr. Stryker a caricature of the clerical character, but we have seen some who were cut from the same material of which Stryker was made. He is a character well worth studying. And such characters as Mr. Graves abound in every community.
The entire portrait of Mr. Graves is capitally drawn. Hetty Hill, the floriculturist, and George Haghes, the ingenious, inventive, thrifty, and religious mechanic, will command the esteem of all who become acquainted with Truro society, the demago, through "Neble. of Truro." The Seymours, the that he is a Schles, and the multitudinous characters of the State moulous picture that is not only pleasing and inte-
